

Telecommunications sector, Paragon maintains its position as an industry leader with the development and introduction of innovative products to the market. After the launch of Scratch Code® in 2004, Paragon developed the Stretch Code® in 2011.

Helping you connect with your customers.

THE CHIP AND PIN REVOLUTION

Our Scratch Code® solution was launched in time for the chip and pin initiative in 2005, when banks were looking for the most secure way to re-issue 50 million cards and pin numbers.

Scratch Code® was one of the first pin mailers available on the market offering two layers of protection – a paper barrier and a scratch-off panel - and was quickly adopted by some of the largest banks in Europe. In 2008, Scratch Code® was accredited by APACS (now C&CCC) to security level 4 having undergone thorough testing by PIRA ensuring that the pin was not visible until revealed by the cardholder and that any tampering with the document was evident.

FROM SCRATCH CODE® TO STRETCH CODE®

In 2011, Paragon launched the Stretch Code®, or IX-Code. Maintaining the same operational functionalities as the Scratch Code® and providing the same levels of unrivalled security, the product has a unique way to reveal the pin.

The Stretch Code® or IX-Code has a membrane that stretches away destroying the background to reveal the lasered image on the face. Easy to use, it leaves no messy residue behind once the panel is removed.

For both products, once the security background is removed, it cannot be replaced, making them completely tamper evident.

FONTS

The pin number is laid down using a secure font provided as part of the package. Our in-house generated fonts can be supplied in the file format required by our customers' print program taking into consideration the format and the d.p.i. of their printers.
